

Caring for Christian Scientists

Are there Christian Science communities where I can live?

I want to stay in my own home, but need a little help — where can I find some?

Can a Christian Science nurse help my mom? What do they do?

Is there assistance available to help me pay for Christian Science nurses?

Welcome to Caring for Christian Scientists, an online and over-the-phone service that provides information, ideas, and resources which help meet the practical needs of Christian Scientists. The service is available in two formats: a website and a call center. Combined, they present a central source of options for Christian Scientists.

RiperYears.org is a website focused on the needs of senior Christian Scientists. It's also for family and friends who may be helping them. You will find each topic framed with spiritual insights and relevant Christian Science articles as you explore practical solutions to daily needs. The topics covered include:

- Housing
- Help at Home
- Christian Science Care
- Financial and Legal

Call Center

The Call Center provides help over the phone to Christian Scientists regarding practical assistance options.

- Calls are answered by experienced Christian Scientists (including Christian Science nurses). Voice mail messages are responded to within 24 hours.
- All conversations are confidential.
- The call center is available to help you think through a situation and point to resources you might explore for yourself or a loved one.
